The RIS3 of Regional Government of Valencia is aimed to transform the Valencian production model with 50 measures.

It was approved by the Commission for Science, Technology and Innovation in 2016.

It has several references to active aging.

General context

“Intelligent Health and Active Life”

The program included in the Policy of Quality of Life as the first axis of development of RIS3

Combines several areas of specialized technologies such as ICT, biotechnology and environmental technologies

The program “Intelligent Health and Active Life”

Has nine measures, out of 50 in total for RIS3 to transform the Valencian production model.

One of them is “Research on aging, fragility, multi-morbidity, cognitive impairment and promotion of active aging”

The budget is 30.52 million euros.

Measures proposed within the Quality of Life Policy

- The development of ICT-based assessment, diagnosis and monitoring systems
- Adaptation to socio-health challenges (mobile diagnosis, home medicine)
- Link to demographic changes.
- Healthy eating
- Physical activity and rest options
- Accessibility to cultural and natural environments for Leisure

Intelligent Health and Quality of Life Program

Within the framework of the Intelligent Health and Quality of Life Program, RIS3 highlights the importance of research lines to prioritize in specific health problems (rare diseases, infectious diseases, emerging epidemics, aging, fragility, Cognitive impairment and active aging)

MEASURES

The measure cited above identifies the implementation of grants and public investment for:
